Ansonsten will er ihr den Trip nach Afrika nicht

bezahlen. Also mach Melanie sich auf den Weg und sucht sich jemanden, der ihr in Wildnis Wyoming zur Seite steht. Stoney Buxton ist dieser Mann. Eher unfreiwillig als freiwillig begleitet er sie auf ihrer Wildnistour. Ihm geht es vor allem darum die elterliche Ranch zu retten, die seit dem Unfall seines Vater permanent vor dem baldigen Verkauf steht. Entweder mit Melanie in die Wildnis oder als Cowboy wieder in den Rodeoring steigen, sind die zwei Möglichkeiten, die Stoney hat um schnellstmöglich an Geld zu kommen. Dank seiner Mutter geht er mit Melanie in die Wildnis. Das führt zwei Sturkpfe miteinander in die Eide, die sich manchmal wie Kinder aufführen, nur um ihren Dickkopf durchzusetzen. Wobei ich sagen muss, Melanie kam mir oft sehr befremdlich vor. Doch die Gedankengänge beider lesen zu können, machte einiges nachvollziehbarer. Für mich besticht die Liebesgeschichte von Stoney und Melanie dadurch, dass sie sich langsam aufbaut und beständig wächst. Man fühlt quasi mit, wie die beiden einander immer mehr zugehen werden. Es scheint jeder Tag in der Wildnis schweigt die beiden mehr zusammen. Was ich etwas nervig fand, war der langatmige Kampf zwischen Melanie und Stoney, ehe er sich dazu entschloss doch mir ihr in die Wildnis zu gehen. Ich empfand diesen Teil als zu gestreckt und hatte fast das Buch in die Ecke gepfeffert. Doch letztlich hat sich das weiterlesen gelohnt. Es entwickelte sich eine wunderschöne langsam sich entwickelnde Liebesgeschichte, die ich sonst verpasst hätte. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. great read Von - Kunde This was a great read even if the theme is cliché, but I liked the characters. Yes there is a happy ending...

Kurzbeschreibung Contemporary Western Romance Novel ... from USA Today Bestselling Author Lisa Mondello What's a girl to do all alone with a rodeo cowboy for 1 month in the Wyoming wilderness? Melanie Summers has something to prove! Being a zoologist is her dream and the only thing standing in the way of her going on an African expedition is her father and his fear. So she strikes a deal. She has to spend a full month in the Wyoming wilderness and show her father she can handle being in a remote area while managing her Type 1 diabetes before he'll agree to fund the expedition to Africa and allow her to go. But her daddy isn't the only one convinced she'll fail... But she's not about to let any man underestimate what she can do. Especially not the sexy rodeo cowboy she's hired to help get her through the month in the wilderness. Yes, he knows what he's doing. But so does she! Yes, he's ruggedly handsome...well, he can't help that, can he? But no sexy cowboy is going to keep her down! Stoney Buxton needs to raise cash fast to save the family ranch after a barn fire injured his father and left the family finances in ruin. Re-entering the rodeo circuit seems like the best way to get the money he needs. That is until Melanie Summers shows up at his ranch flashing easy money. To everyone else, Melanie's offer seems like the answer to all his prayers. But one look at her long legs and pouting lips and Stoney knows this high society gal is going to be nothing but trouble...for his cowboy heart. Excerpt: His jaw tightened. Yes, there was something definitely wrong here. And money had nothing to do with it. It had everything to do with this beauty standing in front of him, who was clueless about what she was getting her pretty little hide into. "No," he replied tersely. "Mr. Buxton, I need your help." "Tourist season is in full swing. I'm sure you'll have no trouble finding someone else." He turned his back to her and began walking along the fence toward the barn, almost forgetting... Abruptly, he glanced up and saw the charred remains of the barn. The place where all his troubles had started just one year ago. It hadn't taken but a second for him to hear her boots digging into the dusty gravel behind him, jarring him from his thoughts. "Then I'll do it myself," she said to his back. His whole body stiffened. He angled back to read her face, to see if she was just being a spoiled rotten rich kid, trying to get her way, or if she was actually serious. Seeing her head held high and her arms crossed in front of her, he realized she was dead serious. And dead she'd be if she stepped one boot into those mountains alone. "You'll do no such thing." Frustration flaring, he lifted his dusty hat and forced his fingers through the thick crop of black hair before returning the hat to his head. "You just don't get it, do you? You're not asking me to take you on a theme park ride where you'll get to see the wonders of the world at a nice safe distance. This is God's country. The creatures that live up there don't know civilization, and you are no better than them. You could--probably will--get killed if you go out there alone." His lips twitched, taking a good long appraising look at the woman in front of him. "You might even chip a nail on that pretty hand of yours."
