KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. I loved this book!Von Ein KundeI started reading this book not knowing what to expect. What I got was a wonderful tear jerker and a great love story.

KurzbeschreibungA sequel to Christmas in Time, this Paranormal Romance takes the lovers back in time to World War II. Ann Debeau has her life all mapped out: live in New York, sell her pottery at a nearby art gallery, and marry Rob, a successful lawyer who has never made her toes curl under. The man you love will make your toes curl under, Aunt Gilly had told her. Still, Rob is reliable and kind and he loves her. What more could Ann want? When Aunt Gilly dies and Ann returns to Fairhope to close Windchime house, every notion she had about her past and her future is turned upside down. A few days into her visit, Hurricane Bethany slams into the Alabama Gulf Coast, leaving Anna trapped in the attic. Her rescuer, Colt Butler, not only makes her toes curl under but bears a striking resemblance to an old photograph in her grandmother's trunk. The sexy polo player whose sense of humor matches his sense of daring, even starts having the same dreams as Ann. But are the dreams something more? Are Ann and Colt lovers lost in time, destined to find each other again? Always a risk taker, Peggy Webb comes up trumps with this wonderfully evocative romance. Melinda Helfer, Romantic Times
