KurzbeschreibungEvaIt's funny that no matter how hard you try to outrun it, your past catches up with you every single time. I thought it would be fun to see an old friend, visit old haunts, relive the best days of my youth. And it was. It was glorious. A much needed break from my current day-to-day. I just had no idea the worst part of that time would be there, too: Carson Brandt. Though that's a lie. He wasn't the worst part, just a part I had no idea how to handle. I was too young. Too inexperienced. He was older, hardened. It was over before it even began. I moved on. Or I thought I did. I thought he did, too. But there's the past again, the one we shared, and now he's sticking his nose where it doesn't belong. Carson Sometimes, out of nowhere, your past jumps up and slaps you in the face. Or bites you somewhere painful. Like your heart. I didn't go to New York expecting to see Eva Channing again. I went for work. Sure, being there always takes me back to the years we worked together, laughed together. Slept together... I shouldn't have looked her up afterward. I should've left her consigned to the part of my life that's long gone. Because she's been keeping a secret all these years. One she had no right to keep. Not from me. A secret named Zach. (Originally published as Love In Bloom.)
